The year 2014, has brought us immense joy and made our conviction much stronger. Firstly, I thank the Government, our partners, our esteemed donors, volunteers and well-wishers for your support. Your continuous support and generosity towards Akshaya Patra has helped us reach new heights.

I am pleased to share with all, that this year will be cherished for a long time as we entered the ‘Hall of Fame’ of ICAI (Institute of Chartered Accountants of India) 2014. The Foundation has consecutively won the Gold Shield award from ICAI for five times since 2008-09 and with the fifth this year, Akshaya Patra has entered the Hall of Fame; we are overjoyed by this. The award acknowledges our commitment to transparency and compliance.

A humbled moment it was, when The Akshaya Patra Foundation was felicitated by Infosys in collaboration with CNN-IBN, in its initiative ‘Innovating for a Better Tomorrow’, to recognise innovations across India that have brought progressive change.

The year 2013 saw the addition of two new locations – Jodhpur, Rajasthan and Rourkela, Odisha. This has enabled us to reach additionally 47,244 children from 581 schools making our total reach over 1.39 Million children.

One meal at a time, we have been expanding across India. Yet, there are several million children whom we are yet to reach and the spirit of Akshaya Patra is driven by them, for them. We realise the trust that all the helping hands have vested in us to work ceaselessly to achieve our mission of reaching 5 Million by 2020. And so we will forevermore be diligent in achieving this feat.

We are gearing up to take bigger strides towards our goal, for which we need the support of the Government, our supporters and partners. And together we can eliminate classroom hunger and give children a promising future.

How It Started

His Divine Grace A. C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada once saw a group of children fighting with street dogs over scraps of food. Moved by this incident, a determination that: ‘No child within a radius of ten miles from our centre should go hungry, was born. His inspiring resolve has led to the birth and growth of The Akshaya Patra Foundation.
This was first heard as the award for ‘Excellence in Financial Reporting’ was announced for the financial year 2008-09. It was a moment of realisation for the organisation and the benchmark was set. Came the end of financial reporting for the year 2009-10 and Akshaya Patra was once again the recipient of the ICAI Gold Shield Award. It was a thrilling moment with higher expectations for the next year. But, no stones were left unturned to grab the award for the third time for the year of 2010-11. And as the award was announced, it was a hattrick for Akshaya Patra. This led the organisation to set its eye on ICAI Hall of Fame. The journey was challenging but the level of sincerity had doubled.

With the announcement that Akshaya Patra bagged 2011-12 Gold Shield Award for the fourth year in a row, the organisation was one step away from the Hall of Fame. Hall of Fame is no simple walk through and the organisation was well aware of that. With the reporting that wrapped the Financial Year 2012-13 all eyes were on Akshaya Patra. Eager ears and racing hearts with controlled anxiety gathered together for the ICAI Award ceremony on the 6th of February 2014. A trail of awards continued till the moment when the voice uttered “…the ICAI Gold Award in the not-for-profit category goes to The Akshaya Patra Foundation!”. A humbled moment for the organisation, when all the efforts, sincerity and commitment that went through was recognised.

The Gold Shield Award of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India is the highest award given by ICAI for Excellence in Financial Reporting.

ICAI adopts a very stringent 3-tier review process for selecting the awardees:

I – Technical Reviewers – Member of ICAI who are accounting and auditing experts

II – Shield Panel – Members of ICAI from various fields

III – External Jury – Eminent persons from various fields

When the review is done and the awardees are decided on absolute accuracy and not relative merit. The selection process is so strict that no one is awarded in certain categories if none meets the criterion.

Akshaya Patra is the third organisation to be enlisted in the ICAI Hall of Fame ever since the inception of the award in 1958. The other two organisations are Infosys Limited and Nucleus Software. Furthermore, Akshaya Patra is the first organisation in the not-for-profit sector to have received this honour.

Odisha gets one more Akshaya Patra kitchen

Now on, 56,111 more children from another 433 schools in India will be assured of a meal every day. The Akshaya Patra Foundation, in collaboration with the Central Government and the State Government of Odisha, has now set up a centralised kitchen in the city of Rourkela. This is the third Akshaya Patra kitchen in Odisha, after Puri and Nayagarh. The organisation started serving mid-day meals in some areas surrounding Rourkela from November, 2013, in order to get an estimate of the number of schools and children that could be reached out to. In March, 2014, the centralised kitchen officially started feeding in the region under Rourkela municipality.

“I appreciate and express my gratitude for your real benevolent practice, which is rooted in the fundamental spiritual principle of compassion, especially by helping the young children who are facing challenges in their physical and mental upbringing.

I pray that you would continue your generous help to the young and old people as long as their difficulties persist.”

His Holiness The 14th Dalai Lama Of Tibet
This is Bharwad Gopal Hamili Bhai, a young boy of about twelve, residing in Gujarat. Gopal belongs to the Bharwad community in Gujarat, whose main occupation is to rear cattle and sheep at home for milk, which is sold for their living. Gopal is a Standard VI student in Dr Hansa Mehta Primary School in Vadsar, a small village near Vadodara, Gujarat.

Gopal’s parents can’t afford another uniform for him. However, Gopal has found a way to tackle this problem. He washes his uniform mid-week and uses it. He also contributes towards his family’s occupation by taking the calves to graze in the fields after school. He takes great pride in admitting that he has spotted snakes many times in the fields. “But I’m not scared of them,” he clarifies and eagerly shares his dream of becoming a Policeman.

Gopal’s mother, Jeeku Behn is grateful that all her four children get fresh food at school, free of cost. “The mid-day meal has reduced our burden to a great extent. Mostly our dinners are just a Bajri roti (Indian bread made of millet) and Mirchi (chilies). My children have a glass of milk every morning before school. We can’t afford nutritious food with vegetables and pulses.”

The Akshaya Patra Foundation attempts to address social issues such as illiteracy and malnutrition in rural areas by providing mid-day meals to children from lower economic strata. The Foundation plans to reach out to more such families across the country.
Meet Pavitra, a student of Chikkasandra Government Higher Primary School, Bangalore. It’s summer time which means holidays are here. The students are done with their exams so the classroom strength is rather scanty when compared to the rest of the year. Most of the students have already gone travelling out of town to visit their native places with their parents. However, Pavitra and her brother continue coming to school and will do so until the last working day of the school. When asked why, she promptly says, “Because we get lunch at school.”

Pavitra and her older brother are part of a group of children who are originally from Davanagere. They are brought down to Bangalore by volunteers from a trust that shelters children with single parents who are facing financial issues. Pavitra and her brother were not aware of the mid-day meal provided by Akshaya Patra at their school before they started attending. According to her teachers, Pavitra was a shy 11-year-old girl when she joined the school. She was surprised that they got a free meal at school and hence was a little hesitant to eat freely. But looking at her classmates relishing the meal, Pavitra and her brother started eating right.

Now it has been a year since she came and she has grown up to be quite confident. “School is a place where children not only come to get educated, but also to grow up socially. Pavitra is a smart girl with bright dreams. We are doing our best to provide her with all the education and strength she needs to achieve her dreams,” says Nagaraj, Head Master, Chikkasandra Government Higher Primary School.
The rich heritage of Vrindavan is not an untold story, but within the realms of this beautiful place are the innocent children who need your support. The high spirited children here need their nourishment and education to find their place in this world.

Join us in making Vrindavan a place where children can live healthy, dream healthy and above all be children.
To ensure that every child in this country is fed well, nourished and given an opportunity to go to school and get educated so that he/she will lead a fruitful life, is our social responsibility. By creating an ecosystem where children can exercise their rights such as right to food and right to education, we will only ensure that we give them what is rightfully theirs. And thus make a difference!
